Transforming Dementia Care with Effervescence

For many people who work in aging services, every day can feel like navigating change. As our elders’ needs advance or their dementia changes their ability to be independent, how do we shift and refocus our role as care partners?

Effective leadership skills are essential to transform care practices in long term care. This seminar was developed for those who wish to better understand how to lead change, navigate challenges and who are looking to enhance their capacity as leaders in their organization, including how to:

- Understand the leader’s role in creating an organizational culture that is nimble and adaptable
- Build skills, tools, and approaches needed to lead transformation
- Facilitate change and implement successful methods to create a culture that can adapt to new ideas for person-centered care
- Strategize ways to initiate and maintain effective culture change efforts while cultivating momentum for the development of person-centered care
- Develop a framework for harnessing enthusiasm and empowering team members to encourage continuous thought leadership and innovation throughout the organization

As care partners to people affected by dementia, we will explore how we focus our energies and how we see the world around us. Those who attend will deepen their awareness of leadership tools, practices, models, and resources that are proven to develop one’s authentic leadership style in order to effectively address the changing needs of those with dementia. We will explore:

- Experiences to deepen our awareness of how it feels to have dementia
- Approaches to better understand what the person with dementia is thinking or feeling
- Meaningful ways to engage the person with dementia
